Israel-Syria-Lebanon: The 14 July Israeli air-strike at Syrian targets apparently has failed to deter Arab Fatah terrorists from infiltrating into Israel. Israel claims that Fatah terrorists entered via Lebanon on 19 July and placed explosives in a village. Tension along the Syrian-Israeli border remains high, and on 20 July Syrian and Israeli patrols exchanged fire along the shore of Lake Tiberias. Such incidents, especially if Israeli lives are lost, raise the possibility of further Israeli action.

Burundi: Prince Charles is reported to have come to an agreement with his deposed father--who is apparently happy to remain in Europe--and will soon be named King Ntare V. The new government has announced a much-needed fiscal austerity program and is moving to win support of the military, civil service, and youth. The political orientation of regime still remains unclear, however, and there continue to be reports and rumors of pro-Communist moves by high-ranking officials in the Tutsi-dominated government.
